PREFACE

This report of campaign financing for the 1990 elections, like those compilations for past elections, concerns itself mainly with candidates for statewide offices and state district offices and with political committees organized to support or to oppose statewide ballot issues.

For federal candidates (those running for the U. S. Congress), the totals of moneys received and spent for the 1990 elections also are included. The totals were compiled from copies of their reports to the Federal Election Commission that, as required, were filed also with the Commissioner's office.

The party affiliation or the independent or nonpartisan status of each candidate is abbreviated and shown in parentheses following each name when it initially appears. Abbreviations and meanings are listed below.

(D)	Democratic Party
(R)	Republican Party
(I)	Independent
(L)	Libertarian Party
(NP)	Nonpartisan

In addition, incumbents are designated by an asterisk (*) before their names.

As was the case with the 1988 campaign finance report, this 1990 edition includes a summary of total campaign moneys received and spent by each candidate and ballot issue committee. The summary in this edition also provides totals raised and spent by all candidates for the same office and by all committees concerned with the same ballot issue.

All of the information presented in this publication was compiled from campaign finance reports filed with the Commissioner of Political Practices. The information, therefore, is only as accurate and complete as were the reports filed by candidates and committees. In the case, however, of well-known public entities, misspellings in reports were corrected for this publication. Any absence of information in this book concerning a contributor's residence or occupation results from a failure of the candidate or committee to have reported that information.
